

Top 10 Reasons to Offer Remote Deposit Capture

How does your credit union plan to leverage remote deposit capture services to serve members and enhance operations? Whether the technology is in your credit union's strategic plan, you are considering a program for the future or you are just beginning your research, take a look at these top reasons for offering remote deposit capture.

1) Satisfy Members or Risk Losing Them.

Consumers of all ages use mobile devices and want mobile options. Keep their business.

2) What Competition?

Prevent members from going to your competitors for these in-demand services by offering them at your credit union.

3) Be Relevant.

Increase your touch points with members as the usage of remote image capture solutions continues to surge.

4) Leverage Credit Unions' Positive Image.

Satisfy the new members switching from banks and attract young adults, your next generation of members.

5) Serve Business Members.

Appeal to business members with merchant and mobile deposit solutions.

6) Enhance Security.

Tighten transaction security with deposit limits, duplicate detection when combined with branch capture (VIP) and other features.

7) Promote Efficiencies.

This technology improves your credit union's deposit workflow and reduces the burden on staff.

8) Save Money.

Take advantage of Alloya's incentives for new service starts.

9) Put Your Corporate to Work.

Alloya's considerable back-office support enables your staff to focus on priorities. Services from other providers may increase work for your staff.

10) Be Prepared.

Remote capture is already a standard. Integrating this technology positions your credit union for business right now -- and prevents you from falling behind.
